

Guitar Neck Pilot

PATTERN & INTERVAL TRAINER

Train patterns. Master the fretboard.

Guitar Neck Pilot

Brand Guide 1.0.0

Train patterns. Master the fretboard.

Brand foundation

Product name: Guitar Neck Pilot

Descriptor: Pattern & Interval Trainer

Tagline: Train patterns. Master the fretboard.

The brand combines technical precision with the warmth of a wooden guitar neck. It should feel focused, premium and practical rather than decorative or theatrical.

Core symbol

The target circle © is the primary visual shorthand. It represents the marked answer position, focus, navigation and deliberate control of the fretboard. Use it independently for favicons and compact icons.

Color palette

| Role       | Hex     | Use                               |
|------------|---------|-----------------------------------|
| Charcoal   | #171411 | Primary background                |
| Gold       | #D4A84E | Target, emphasis, primary accents |
| Cream      | #EFE7D4 | Headings and logo text            |
| Wood brown | #693E23 | Fretboard illustration            |
| Muted gray | #AAA49A | Secondary text                    |

Typography

Use a clear geometric or humanist sans serif. Bold weights establish the product name; regular weights support interface and documentation; italics are reserved for the tagline. The distributed assets use DejaVu Sans-compatible metrics to avoid external font dependencies.

Logo use

Maintain clear space equal to the target-circle radius around the full lockup. Do not recolor the gold target, distort the fretboard, rotate the wordmark or place the dark logo on a low-contrast background.

Use the compact target icon below 96 px. Use the horizontal logo for the application header, documentation and release pages. Use the full splash artwork only at startup or in promotional material.

Voice and terminology

Tone: direct, encouraging and technically accurate. Preferred terms are pattern, interval, target, round, fretboard and progress. Avoid claims of instant mastery or guaranteed musical outcomes.
